STUDENT HANDBOOK

Introduction

Denison University is an educational community that prizes intellectual excellence and integrity. At Denison, students participate in an academic experience under the guidance of a faculty deeply devoted to teaching and actively engaged in advanced research and scholarship. The residential nature of this community permits learning to continue beyond the classroom.

Denison regards its students as moral agents who are capable of assuming primary responsibility for conducting their lives and making their decisions. Central to the mission of the University is the continual development of a community of respect, in which the principles of human dignity and ethical integrity are paramount. Rational dialogue and discourse determine the character of our interaction with each other.

Denison expects all members of the academic community to engage each other with mutual respect, compassion, and a deep appreciation for all of the cultural, racial, ethnic, sexual, religious, and economic differences that comprise the richness of our community.

The Student Handbook is not a contract. It is provided with the intention of including in one location current information and resources for student life at Denison. In it you will find a description of the various offices, services, and resources, as well as the policies and regulations that govern life at the University. All students are responsible for reading and knowing the policies and regulations of the University.

As you embark upon your collegiate journey at Denison, we trust that this Handbook will serve you well as a guide.

Nondiscrimination Policy

Title IX Notice

Sex discrimination is prohibited by federal law through Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. Denison does not discriminate on the basis of sex in the education programs or activities that it operates, including admissions and employment. Title IX also prohibits retaliation against reporters of sex discrimination, including reports of sex discrimination against administrators and other employees, and Denison will investigate alleged retaliation for participation in the Title IX process. Inquiries concerning the application of Title IX and reports of sex discrimination, including sexual harassment, may be made to the Title IX Coordinator at any time at the contact information below and also as detailed in Denison's Title IX grievance and response procedures and processes, found on Denison's Title IX website (<https://denison.edu/campus/title-ix>).

Statement on Academic Freedom

Denison University actively promotes the free expression and exchange of ideas. Academic freedom is essential to the aims of higher education and to the University's goals of fostering critical thinking, moral discernment, and active citizenship among its members. It is the responsibility of the faculty and the administration to protect academic freedom. Furthermore, because Denison is a residential, liberal arts college, academic freedom must be extended to all members of the university community in the broadest of contexts. Indeed, academic freedom is a core value of liberal education and is essential to the transformative power of that education promised in our mission statement.

Academic freedom is the right of all members of the University to exercise the broadest possible latitude in speaking, writing, listening, challenging, and learning. It applies to opinions and inquiry regarding political, cultural, religious, scientific, and social matters, as well as to those regarding the University itself and its policies. Academic freedom is especially critical in the classroom, in research and publication, and in all educational activities.

Academic freedom applies to views and ideas that most members of the University may consider mistaken, dangerous, and even despicable. The ideas of different members of the University community will often conflict, but it is not the proper role of the University to shield individuals from ideas and opinions they find unwelcome, disagreeable, or offensive. Although the University values civility, and although all members of the University community share the responsibility for maintaining a climate of mutual respect, concerns about civility and mutual respect can never be used as a justification for limiting discussion of ideas, however offensive or disagreeable those ideas may be to some members of the community.

Academic freedom does not, of course, mean that individuals may say whatever they wish, whenever they wish. The University may prohibit expression that violates the law, defames specific individuals, constitutes a genuine threat or harassment, or unjustifiably invades substantial privacy or confidentiality interests. These limitations, however, are narrow exceptions; it is vitally important that these exceptions never be used in a manner that is inconsistent with the University's commitment to a free expression of ideas.

Members of the University community must act in conformity with the principle of academic freedom. Although members of the University community are free to criticize and contest the views of others, they may not obstruct or otherwise interfere with the freedom of others to express views they reject. To this end, the University has a solemn responsibility not only to promote a lively and fearless freedom of debate and deliberation, but also to protect that freedom when others attempt to restrict it. Such an open exchange of ideas is essential to liberal education.

Two dozen librarians and staff members help students find and assess resources in all formats; they meet with students one-on-one and often teach classroom sessions on library research. In conjunction with the first-year Advising Circles program, all students are assigned a "Personal Librarian" in September, so there's always someone they can approach, call, text, or email to get help.

Throughout our seven floors, the library has a variety of spaces that support quiet study and collaborative work. We offer access to over 500 databases and 26 million electronic articles from wherever you are. While we hold over half a million volumes in our building, we also have strong consortial partnerships that allow quick access to the resources of 120 higher ed members of OhioLINK, more than 46 million items.

Disability Grievance Procedures

For Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990.

Through policy and practice, Denison University is committed to providing to all enrolled students equal access to campus programs, services and activities. The following procedures have been adopted to ensure and maintain the University compliance with Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) of 1990 under which no qualified student with a disability shall be denied access to or participation in programs, services or activities of Denison University. A qualified student is defined as one who meets the requisite academic and technical standards required for admission or participation in a post secondary institution's programs and activities. A person with a disability is anyone with a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities, such as walking, seeing, hearing, speaking or learning. In addition to those people who have visible disabilities, the definition includes people with a whole range of invisible disabilities. These include psychological disabilities, learning disabilities, or some chronic health impairments such as epilepsy, diabetes, lupus, cancer, HIV/AIDS, and more.

Anti-Harassment Policy

The term "harassment" in this policy refers to unwelcome behavior that is offensive and sufficiently severe or pervasive that it interferes with, or limits the ability of, another individual to participate in or benefit from the services, activities, or privileges provided by the university, or creates an intimidating, hostile, or abusive working, living, or learning environment.

It is the policy of Denison University, to be read in context with the important principles regarding academic freedom, that all students, faculty, staff, and visitors should be free from harassment in any form – physical, verbal, graphic, written, or otherwise – based upon an individual's race, color, religion, ethnic or national origin, age, disability, sex, gender, gender identity, gender expression, sexual orientation, veteran status, or any other bases prohibited by law. This policy extends to conduct on university property or off university property if the conduct occurred in connection with a university or university-sponsored event program or activity or the conduct has or reasonably may have the effect of creating a hostile educational or work environment for a member of the university community.

Please refer to Denison's Anti-Harassment Policy (<https://denison.edu/forms/anti-harassment-policy/>) as every member of the Denison community is responsible for adhering to the Anti-Harassment Policy and fully cooperating in its enforcement.

Any member of the university community who believes that they have been the victim of conduct or has witnessed conduct that violates the Anti-Harassment Policy is encouraged to report the matter to a responsible university official: Office of Human Resources, Director of Civil Rights & Title IX (Title IX Coordinator), Dean of Student Life, or the Associate Provost for Diversity Equity and Inclusion.

Campus Organizations

Getting the most out of your Denison experience means getting involved. The Alford Community Leadership & Involvement Center (CLIC) recognizes the importance of co-curricular activities as a key part of your college experience. Recognized campus organizations and their members are responsible for adhering to and supporting the community standards and values outlined in the Student Handbook, the Campus Compact (<https://denison.edu/campus/about/campus-compact/>), the Code of Student Conduct (<https://denison.edu/forms/code-of-student-conduct/>), and the Campus Organization Handbook (<https://denison.edu/forms/campus-organization-handbook/>). A campus organization, its officers, and/or its members may be held collectively and/or individually responsible for violating the Code of Student Conduct. For comprehensive information about the operations and management of campus organizations and important policies, refer to the Campus Organization Handbook: denison.edu/forms/campus-organization-handbook (<https://issuu.com/denisonuniversity/docs/campusorghandbook/>).

Business and Commercial Activities

Denison University strives to provide an environment conducive to academic endeavors and co-curricular activities, including entrepreneurial activities. For students with existing businesses or nonprofits and those with new ideas for a business or nonprofit, the Red Frame Lab is your source of support, connections to resources, and mentors.

Denison encourages students to explore entrepreneurship in a variety of forms, particularly when connected to Denison's mission. In pursuing entrepreneurial activities, students must comply with University rules and coordinate their activities with the Red Frame Lab. Student ventures cannot violate the university's Housing Policy and Denison's Code of Student Conduct and be unlawful or disruptive to other students or the campus.

Individual Denison Community Members

The following guidelines should be followed by individuals interested in fundraising or sponsoring business activities on campus:

1. Responsibility: All student businesses or non-profit organizations are the student's responsibility. Denison does not provide all applicable insurance, tax, legal, and incorporation requirements. However, the Red Frame Lab employees can help student entrepreneurs think through these aspects of their business venture.
2. Approval: Students must communicate with Red Frame Lab employees regarding the existence and nature of their business or non-profit via email and in-person meetings. All paperwork, policies, forms, and procedures necessary for operating a student-run business or non-profit on campus must be obtained from Red Frame Lab and, when completed, reviewed with Red Frame Lab employees. The Red Frame Lab will provide authorization for community members to continue pursuing their activity and keep a record of that authorization.
3. Intellectual Property: Any use of Denison intellectual property, including logos, trademarks, and copyrights outside of classes or programs, is subject to standard intellectual property use restrictions. Use associated with classes and programs is subject to review by those advisors.
4. Residence Hall Use: Students may operate businesses on campus and/or out of their residence hall rooms so long as no activity violates individual residence hall rules or residence hall quiet hours, does not violate the university's housing policy, does not interfere with other students' use of the residence hall, does not disrupt the campus, and does not violate other university policies not listed here.

5. Receiving and Shipping: The University mail room is for personal packages and is within reasonable personal use. All students operating a business on campus must meet with the Assistant Director for Business Services (the mailroom Director) before beginning to receive or ship anything more than personal items.
6. Space: Students operating a business or non-profit may utilize University facilities (such as a residence hall room) once the Red Frame Lab authorization is obtained. Use of university space will be determined on a case-by-case basis. There is no guarantee space will be made available. Students engaged in academically sanctioned businesses through a class or program may utilize facilities and services specified and reserved through the class or program.
7. Denison Enterprises: Denison Enterprises, a university-sanctioned campus organization, exists to help students start and operate Denison-centric businesses that exist for the sole benefit of the Denison community and not for individual profit. Meet with a Denison Enterprises or Red Frame Lab employees representative to learn more.
8. Payment Acceptance Guidelines: Students conducting private businesses must adhere to Payment Card Information Data Security Standards (PCI-DSS) to protect credit cardholders' data. These guidelines are in place to protect Denison from liability for credit card transactions not conducted for university business. If you have any questions regarding this guidance, please contact ITS: helpdesk@denison.edu
 - a. Credit card transactions may not occur on university-owned devices. Personal computers, phones, or point-of-sale devices must be used for such transactions.
 - b. Credit card transactions may not occur over a university wireless network. Cellular service is required for all in-person, over-the-phone, or online transactions.
 - c. Cardholder information that includes the 16-digit account number cannot be physically on campus, in a student's residence hall room, or on a university-owned device.

Campus Organizations

Getting the most out of your Denison experience means getting involved. The Alford Community Leadership & Involvement Center (CLIC) recognizes the importance of co-curricular activities as a key part of your college experience. For a complete list of Denison's campus organizations, please go to WhatToDU (<https://whattodu.denison.edu/>). Alleged violations by campus organizations are referred to the Office of Community Values & Student Conduct (OCVSC) and are resolved in accordance with the expectations and procedures outlined in the Code of Student Conduct. For comprehensive information about the operations and management of campus organizations and important policies, refer to the Campus Organization Handbook (<https://denison.edu/forms/campus-organization-handbook/>).

Code of Student Conduct

Part of the learning and development that Denison fosters is the ability to make ethical decisions and contribute to healthy communities by understanding the connections between individual choices and community well-being. Every student who accepts the invitation to join the Denison community is expected to abide by the University's policies, as well as identify ways to support fellow students in abiding by University policies or report to the University when they observe others violating those policies. The Code of Student Conduct outlines the expectations not only Denison has for its students, but also what students expect from their peers as being members of the community. The Code of Student Conduct also outlines the University's procedures for resolving conflicts. It is not a legal document, nor written with the specificity of a criminal statute, but is an educational document based on the University's values. The Code can be accessed at <https://denison.edu/forms/code-of-student-conduct> (<https://denison.edu/forms/code-of-student-conduct/>) and is administered by the Office of Community Values and Student Conduct.

It is important to note that students are expected to not only abide by the expectations set by Denison University both on and off campus; they are also expected to abide by local, state, and federal laws throughout their time as a Denisonian.

Demonstration Policy

The Demonstrations Policy provides guidelines for demonstrations, assemblies, leafleting, memorials, protests, rallies, signature gatherings, sit-ins, teach-ins, and vigils.

Missing Student Notification Policy

Denison University's Missing Student procedures assist students who, based on facts and circumstances made known to the University, are determined to be missing. The Missing Student Notification Policy & Missing Student Procedure at <http://denison.edu/forms/missing-student-policy-procedure> (<http://denison.edu/forms/missing-student-policy-procedure/>) describes required notifications within twenty-four (24) hours after the time a student is deemed to be missing. This plan complies with the August 14, 2008 Higher Education Opportunity Act, Section 485 (j) of the U.S. Department of Education.

Motor Vehicle Regulations

The Denison University Parking and Traffic Regulations have been created and adopted for the purpose of promoting the safe and orderly use of vehicles on our campus.

Use of vehicles on campus must comply with Denison's Parking and Traffic Regulations in addition to State of Ohio motor vehicle laws. Denison students who intend to park their vehicle for any length of time are expected to have knowledge of and comply with the provisions of these Rules and Regulations.

Motor vehicle regulations and policies may be viewed at <https://denison.edu/campus/safety/vehicles-on-campus> (<https://denison.edu/campus/safety/vehicles-on-campus/>)

Parents/Guardians and Communications

The transition to college is an exciting and significant one for both students and families. Denison seeks to develop independent, self-reliant students who take ownership of their education and campus life. Because our students are adults, Denison treats you as such, and wants and expects you to be your own agents, shape your own experience, and to communicate directly with faculty and staff about challenges or concerns. Our faculty and staff are incredibly dedicated to our students and are here to support you in their academic and personal growth.

The University's approach to parental engagement and disclosure of student information to parents is based both upon legal privacy requirements and the university's philosophy that students are adults. For more information visit, <https://denison.edu/forms/communication-policy> (<https://denison.edu/forms/communication-policy/>).

Policy on Firearms

No person shall possess, carry, store or use a firearm, deadly weapon or dangerous ordinance, as defined in the Ohio Revised Code, in or on university premises, defined as university owned, rented and/or sponsored property, except as allowable under Ohio Law. To view the complete policy, go to <https://denison.edu/forms/policy-on-firearms> (<https://denison.edu/forms/policy-on-firearms/>)

Policy on Hazing

Consistent with the Ohio Revised Code, no individual, group, campus organization or team (including intercollegiate and recreation teams) shall conduct or condone hazing activities. Apathy or acquiescence in the presence of hazing is not considered a neutral act; such action violates this policy. Tradition, the intent of such acts, and the express or implied consent of the victim do not constitute valid defenses for violations of the policy.

Ohio anti-hazing law "Collin's Law: Ohio's Anti-Hazing Act", was signed by Governor Mike DeWine on Tuesday, July 6, 2021. The law increases the legal penalties for hazing, creates a statewide curriculum for college students about hazing and requires transparency at the University level to report instances of hazing.

Incoming students are required to complete training through the Enrollment Checklist before arriving on campus; students who choose to join campus organizations must complete supplemental training each academic year.

It is everyone's responsibility to report allegations or concerns surrounding hazing. Students, faculty, staff, and non-Denison affiliated individuals should report directly to Campus Safety in person on Parking Garage Level P1 or by phone at (740)587-6482.

Individuals may also report through Denison's Anonymous Reporting System (<https://denison.edu/campus/anti-hazing/reporting-hazing/>). However, reports submitted anonymously or with limited information may limit Denison's ability to follow up on a concern. We urge individuals to report as much information as possible and to provide a way for Denison to communicate in follow-up.

To view Denison's full Hazing Prevention Policy, go to <https://denison.edu/campus/anti-hazing> (<https://denison.edu/campus/anti-hazing/>)

Policy on Inappropriate Relationships Between Students and Faculty

A relationship between a faculty member and a student that is romantic or sexual is not in harmony with the values of the Denison community. Such an inappropriate relationship exploits the inherent inequality of power between faculty and students, creates a situation that inhibits the learning environment, and has a negative impact on the community. As such, it is incumbent upon faculty not to engage in such relationships, and to do so will be considered the basis for disciplinary action.

For more information and to view the complete policy, go to Policy on Inappropriate Relationships Between Students and Faculty in the faculty handbook at <https://catalog.denison.edu/faculty-handbook/community-standards-policies/vii-h-policy-inappropriate-relationships-between->

Policy Prohibiting Sex Discrimination, including Sexual Harassment, Sexual Misconduct, Stalking and Retaliation

Sexual violence has a profound impact on both assault survivors and our community. Our community expects that students who choose to engage in sexual activity do so safely, appropriately, and in a manner that does not violate University Policy and/or the law. Students who attempt to or engage in sexual activity must have affirmative consent from the other person(s). Violations may vary in severity and consist of a range of behavior, including but not limited to non-consensual sexual contact or touching and non-consensual sexual intercourse, including forced sexual intercourse. Allegations of sexual misconduct are subject to the Policy Prohibiting Sex Discrimination, including Sexual Harassment, Sexual Misconduct, Stalking and Retaliation at <https://denison.edu/forms/policy-prohibiting-sex-discrimination> (<https://denison.edu/forms/policy-prohibiting-sex-discrimination/>), which outlines the University's definitions of consent, force, incapacitation, and other important definitions related to sexual misconduct, as well as procedures used to investigate and resolve alleged violations. Students are responsible for reading and acting in accordance with the policy.

Reinstatement & Re-enrollment

Residential Communities and Student Housing Policies

Denison University is committed to the learning opportunities fostered in our residential communities. We strongly believe that students and our larger community benefit from these environments and the conditions they create within the student learning experience. As such, Denison requires that all students reside in the residence halls throughout the duration of their four years at the college.

With the notion of community and academic success at its core, the Residential Communities and Housing program is focused on the development of positive learning environments and a strong sense of civic responsibility and is designed to support the overall academic mission of the college. Students sign a Residence Agreement which defines student housing regulations and policies. The Residence Agreement and other important regulations may be viewed at <https://denison.edu/campus/housing/residential-policies> (<https://denison.edu/campus/housing/residential-policies/>). By accepting University housing, students agree to abide by these policies, the Code of Student Conduct available at <https://denison.edu/forms/code-of-student-conduct> (<https://denison.edu/forms/code-of-student-conduct/>), and other policies as described in this Student Handbook.

Social Event Management Policy (SEM)

Social Event Management Policy (SEM) - The SEM Policy was developed in collaboration by students, faculty, and staff to provide autonomy to party hosts while maintaining the interest of a safe and respectful social environment. The University provides several flexible, quality spaces in which students can host registered social events. Students can become "Social Event Manager" trained to activate this privilege.

For information, training, and to register events, visit <https://my.denison.edu/campus-resources/social-event-management-policy-and-training> (<https://my.denison.edu/campus-resources/social-event-management-policy-and-training/>)

Smoking, Vaping, and E-Cigarettes

As a public health measure, smoking, including vaping and e-cigarettes, is prohibited in all interior areas of University buildings, including classrooms, residence halls, offices, labs, restrooms, hallways, and dining rooms.

Student Consumer Complaint Policy

Federal regulations require each college or university authorized to offer postsecondary education in one or more states to ensure access to a complaint process. To view Denison's Student Consumer Complaint Policy go to <https://denison.edu/forms/student-consumer-complaint-policy> (<https://denison.edu/forms/student-consumer-complaint-policy/>)

Student Records

Denison University guarantees full compliance with the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974. Student educational records are maintained and may be accessed only by members of the University with legitimate educational interest in the student.

Students may inspect the contents of their official file and placement credentials, including personal references. Exceptions are letters collected under a waiver of inspection and information on parents' financial status. Requests should be in writing to the office responsible for those records and upon inspection may not be removed from that office.

The Division of Student Life is the depository for student conduct and disciplinary records. The Provost's office maintains Academic Integrity records. The Registrar's Office maintains all academic information. The Office of Financial Aid maintains all forms and correspondence regarding financial aid, scholarships and student employment. University Communications maintains information used for news releases to the media.

In addition to the regular sharing of grade information among University offices concerned with student academic standing and advising, cumulative GPAs are furnished to officers of chartered honoraries for the purpose of membership selection.

Contents of inspected records may be challenged upon the grounds that the information is inaccurate, misleading or otherwise in violation of the person's privacy or other rights. The administrator responsible for maintenance of those records will hear the challenge, and based on the information presented may decide to:

- Let the record stand
- Allow the student to insert a letter of explanation

- Correct the record
- Delete the item in question

University Privacy Policy
